It's big enough to offer a quality of life that offers a variety of public services and community amenities that make it a solid community to live in. It's not so big yet that political leaders like Mayor Kneeland and my city council member, Brian Larrick, are hard to track down or interact with. It's location to John Glenn Columbus International airport, downtown Columbus and OSU, not to mention great shopping areas including Easton, make it highly desirable compared to more isolated communities.

In a few sentences, tell us why you enjoy visiting, living or working in Gahanna:

We lived in Olde Gahanna for six months, before moving 17 months ago into our totally renovated 1952 home, a period of time that ratified our decision in 2014 to move from our condo community in Columbus to this growing community, whose economic profile is good, and getting better. Making new friends and participating in selected community groups and initiatives, only reinforces our commitment to making Gahanna a fun and rewarding city to live in. In addition to fulfilling my role as a board member of the Old Gahanna Sanctuary, two other goals I'd love to be associated with is increasing voter turnout and the design a new city flag everyone will be proud to fly at their home or place of business.

Please share up to three key words or thoughts that come to mind when you hear “Gahanna”:

Diverse

Outdated

Low taxes

In a few sentences, tell us what makes Gahanna unique and special from other cities:

Right now Gahanna citizens are mostly drawn to the city for the low tax rate and affordable housing with decent schools at the elementary and middle school level. In the future, I'd like to see Gahanna define itself with a small town feel primarily driven by being a family-focused, neighborhood-friendly city with top notch schools. I like the idea of maintaining a village type feel or environment. Both Mill Street and Granville should be updated to become the epicenter of the city. Many of the buildings on Granville are extremely old, outdated, and uninviting, especially for new people looking to move to the city. Any new buildings, street signs, etc. could all be built with a cutesy old world village vibe to conjure up the small town feel that many state they'd like to keep. By building a more updated and inviting epicenter, updating the parks and walking paths, focusing on improving the schools, and continuing to offer and build upon the events the city offers for families (e.g. Holiday Lights, charity events, fireworks, etc.) would make Gahanna a stronger destination point. Additionally, Gahanna should enable a stronger business park for revenue generation and build more higher end housing on the East side for additional revenue. A second high school is likely needed in the future. While many are unsupportive of this, I would be very supportive since I believe the focus on the epicenter and family-friendly events is really what would make the city feel small despite a larger population. Plus, I attended the high school, and with it being so big, I hardly knew half of the school anyway. Thus, a single massive high school doesn't automatically create or lead to a small town feel; friendly people who engage in the city offerings and who help one another are what creates a small town feel.

In a few sentences, tell us why you enjoy visiting, living or working in Gahanna:

I enjoy the proximity to the downtown area and Easton. I also appreciate the diversity here and that individuals are more down to earth than those in our neighboring city of New Albany. However, until more changes occur, there's nothing really else that makes the city all that attractive or inviting.

In a few sentences, tell us what makes Gahanna unique and special from other cities:

Gahanna has so many more trees and woodland areas compared to the rest of Columbus. It also has a healthy ratio of small businesses and professional services compared to chain stores and fast food joints. This gives our village character, but it has very few large employers to attract salary workers like you would find in Dublin or Columbus so we lose tax dollars. The addition of more and more high density housing and traffic is eroding the small town feel we had a decade ago, and there has not been enough of an expansion of creekside to give it a meaningful city center identity.

In a few sentences, tell us why you enjoy visiting, living or working in Gahanna:

I like the smallish town feel of living in Gahanna, but go to other parts of Columbus for many activities. There isn't much for visitors to do here, and not many tech jobs for me to consider working in town.

In a few sentences, tell us what makes Gahanna unique and special from other cities:

I don't think Gahanna has an identity. Right now, it isn't special. So I'm glad the city is working on this project. There are a lot of parks. And, for a suburb, we have a lot of religious, ethnic and income diversity, which is great. I'd like to see Gahanna become a Grandview or Clintonville for families with older children. It would help to have a destination pool (Westerville), a functional city center (Worthington), or a great community center (Dublin). There should be more destination shops in the downtown area. Visible storefronts should be shops that sell goods, rather than services, like real estate, finance, etc. The fact of the matter is that Gahanna's greatest selling point is its convenience to everything: Easton, Hamilton road, New Albany/Westerville/Bexley, the airport, and the city. But convenience is not a feature that fosters good feeling or any particular identity. The city should be careful here too. You can't manufacture an identity/brand out of space for something that already exists. It will seem forced and no one will buy into it. This is going to be tricky project. My recommendation would be to look to other cities that have successfully negotiated this terrain.

In a few sentences, tell us why you enjoy visiting, living or working in Gahanna:

Convenience to everything. Families' lives are so busy these days, with dual working parents, kids' activities, and household duties. You have to live somewhere that can make all of this possible: "Gahanna works."
