

Gahanna PD Community Bulletin: May 2022

Traffic complaints – be it speed on residential streets, vehicles failing to stop for stop signs or driver inattention in school zones – are the most common reasons residents contact the Gahanna Division of Police (GPD). Gahanna-focused social media sites are the frequent outlet for some to express frustration with discourteous drivers and either real or perceived traffic scofflaws. As we enter our seventh traffic fatality-free month in Gahanna, rest assured traffic safety, including reducing the number of traffic crashes, is one of our primary missions.

Gahanna has 325 lane miles of residential streets and arterial roadways, several miles of Interstate 270 and 11 school zones within its jurisdiction. More crashes occur within the City's section of IR-270 than any other roadway. In fact, approximately one fourth to one third of all the annual crashes in Gahanna occur on IR-270 (as of the date of this writing, just under 30% of the City's annual crashes have been on IR-270). Excessive speed, abrupt lane changes, following too closely, impaired and distracted driving are the primary causes of these interstate crashes. To clear up a common misconception, our agency has primary responsibility for responding to and investigating crashes occurring within the City's jurisdictional boundaries on IR-270 – not the Ohio State Highway Patrol, Franklin County Sheriff's Office, or Columbus Division of Police.

High traffic volume, vehicle speeds, limited visibility, distracted motorists, and other factors associated with crash scenes, frequently expose first responders to many risks and hazards. Stabilizing the scene, treating and transporting the injured, and conducting a thorough investigation while attempting to minimize delays and disruptions for other motorists is often challenging. In today's world, these challenges are far too often compounded by drivers consumed with their own personal priorities or those whose attention is focused on the use of personal devices rather than the safe operation of their vehicle. Tragically, many police officers, firefighters, and tow truck drivers have lost their lives while rendering aid to traffic crash victims. We take the response to traffic crashes and the risks associated with them very seriously, just as we take our obligation to reduce their occurrence through robust traffic enforcement, crash analysis, multi-agency operations, media releases, public advisories and education programs.

Gahanna PD Community Bulletin: May 2022

While the interstate presents its own set of unique challenges, so do our school zones and residential streets. Like most agencies, our volume of calls-for-service, combined with other responsibilities can exceed the capacity of the patrol officers assigned to a particular shift. Given our calls-for-service, staffing levels and other factors, we are precluded from assigning an officer to each school zone on a daily basis. We simply cannot assign an officer to every residential street location associated with a traffic complaint as other duties would be neglected.

While excessive speed and other violations occur to varying degrees on all public roadways, we are fortunate in that the City experiences a relatively low incidence of pedestrian and bicycle-involved crashes annually. We maintain an active presence in many of our school zones in order to provide a visible deterrence to aggressive driving behaviors. Through student engagement initiatives, our officers educate young drivers about safe-driving practices and encourage our students to eliminate distractions while crossing streets.

In all cases, we must prioritize our calls-for-service with public requests for increased traffic enforcement on a particular roadway, be it within a school zone or otherwise. To that end, we make every effort to identify high-risk locations and devote appropriate resources based upon data collection and analysis and other metrics, such that we have the greatest impact on improving public and roadway safety given finite resources. In response to traffic complaints from residents we deploy traffic volume and speed survey equipment, our mobile speed monitoring and notification device in an effort to promote public awareness, and officers in marked vehicles for high-visibility enforcement activities in key locations.

Frequently, we find that the very residents of a particular neighborhood in which we are working a speed complaint are the ones most often cited for traffic violations – and often times flagrant ones – vs. drivers “cutting” through a residential area (as is often reported). Most of these violations are associated with morning and evening “rush hours” as residential areas experience a high volume of motorists on their way to and from work or school. We encourage drivers to leave ample time for their commutes, lowering vehicle speed when entering residential areas, eliminate driving distractions, be aware of children in the area, and to simply be respectful of other residents in their neighborhood through courteous and safe driving habits. Think of it as the “golden rule” of driving in your neighborhood - drive like you would want others to drive in front of your own home.

Gahanna PD Community Bulletin: May 2022

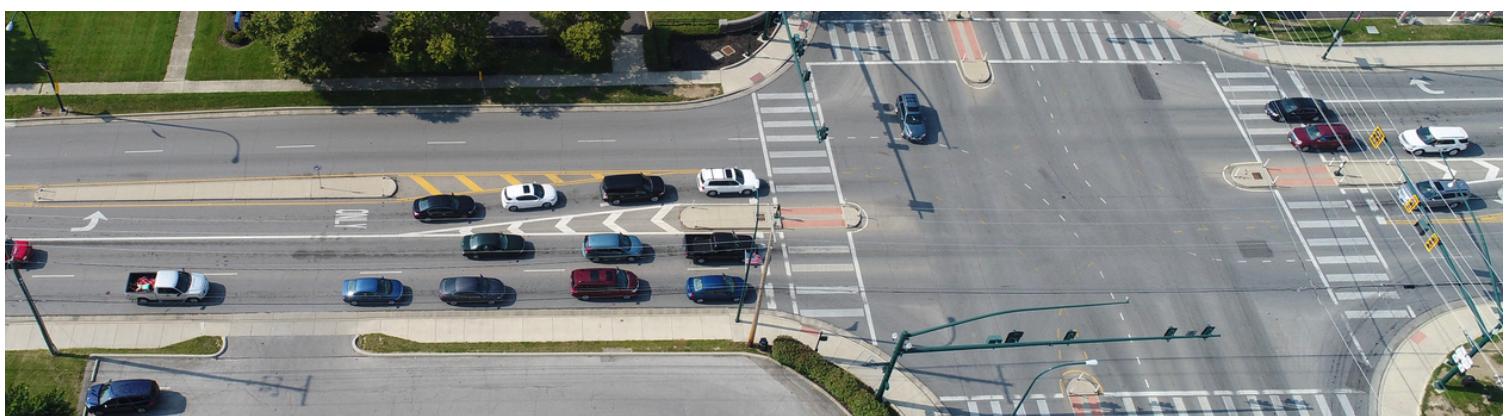

Beyond addressing specific public complaints or mitigating the incidence of crashes, proactive traffic enforcement efforts in general are an invaluable tool used by law enforcement to discover, interrupt, and reduce all types of criminal activity. Simply put, we try to enhance overall public safety by intercepting criminals on the roadway (who are perhaps on their way to or from having committed a more serious crime) and taking appropriate action. For example, traffic enforcement resulting in the arrest of drivers or other vehicle occupants following the discovery of outstanding warrants, illegal firearms and drugs, and stolen property, is commonplace. This is one reason why there is no such thing as a "routine" traffic stop; every officer knows that every stop has the potential to escalate into a deadly encounter with an armed individual.

A traffic stop is likely the only enforcement encounter many will have with a police officer in their lifetime. In nearly all cases, the violation must be observed by a sworn officer in order for enforcement action to occur. Given the potential hazards of traffic stops, not the least of which is being hit by a passing vehicle, it is in everyone's ultimate interest to minimize the time spent stopped on the roadside. Our officers are trained to conduct every traffic stop with professionalism and courtesy and we would ask that the public do the same even if not "agreeing" with the reason for the stop. The proper venue to contest a traffic violation is always in court and not on the roadside.

While traffic safety is one of our primary missions, it is not one we can fully accomplish without you – the public. We urge drivers to maintain focus on the roadway around them, maintain a safe and legal speed, slow down or move over for stopped emergency vehicles, and we remind drivers not to text and drive. When planning your travels or even daily commute, a little patience and a bit of extra time can go a long way in making our roadways and neighborhoods safe and setting a great example for our young drivers. Because we in law enforcement cannot do it alone, we must continue to partner together for a safer Gahanna!

Accreditation Update

The Gahanna Division of Police is very excited to announce that we have begun the process to become certified through The Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies (CALEA). CALEA provides the highest standards for law enforcement agencies to abide by, has been in existence since 1979, and is internationally known. By being accredited, the Gahanna Division of Police will ensure the agency is adhering to the highest possible standards, reduce the risk of liability, and solicit greater community involvement.

CALEA accreditation involves a three-step process. The first of which is to develop internal policies and procedures that comply with CALEA's 458 standards. Once we have completed the first phase, the Division will engage in a self-assessment and conduct an internal audit to determine compliance with CALEA standards. During the final phase, a CALEA assessor will do an on-site audit to determine compliance. During this audit, division facilities will be inspected, employees interviewed, and comments will be solicited from the public and other key community stakeholders. The Division is currently involved in phase one of the process and is actively developing and revising the internal policies. We hope to start the self-assessment phase within the next year, and ultimately gain CALEA accreditation in the next three years. It is a great accomplishment to become CALEA accredited as there are only 52 police departments in the State of Ohio that have achieved this honor. The City of Gahanna Division of Police is committed to being the next.
